Dearest Sis Eva:

Well, Sis, my long awaited dream has come true. We freed Milt just as I said ~~he~~ would. Gee! I can't express the feeling. It's just some thing out of this world. I've been with him 2 days now. I saw him just a little while ago. Soon he'll be on his way home, then every one will be happy. He looks small, honest.

I have been in the camp quite often because he isn't allowed out. They are planning the evacuation of them and he didn't want to miss out on anything.

I could go on and tell you everything about him but, I'll let him do that.

I told Mom all the details of our meeting. It's quite a story so I won't write it again. It would fill this paper.

I'll bet every one was surprized to hear that we freed Milt. There sure was a bunch of men there. They announced on the radio that there was 110,000. The 99th sure can do things unexpectedly, huh?

I have seen all the gang. Poulson Hampel, Davis and a few others from Miltons gang. Sure are as well bia
